

Mark Holiday

Fine Detail Artist & Fairytale Illustrator

Mark Holiday was found in a small forest, snugly wrapped in dry leaves, by the Fairy Folk. After a wonderful childhood he was apprenticed to the Great Baldini, fairy artist to the King and Queen of the Fairies, Oberon and Titania.

After many years of studying under the Great Baldini, Mark decided to go out into the world and seek his fortune and so began to teach people "The Fine Art Of Fine Detail Painting".

Mark also writes, illustrates and animates Fairy Tales and he is currently working on a 30 minute animated feature film that he hopes to release alongside his new children's book Gullwicks Travels, Gullwick and the Sunset, later in the year.

Mark also runs his own Giclee printing company where he produces books, calendars, greetings cards and giclee prints for other artists.
